Long-Term Care Planning – Understanding the Issues and Solutions

Long-Term Care Planning might include insurance to cover some, or most of the care, but it has gotten more complicated than ever. Long-term care insurance is now built into many different types of financial products, and it can be very difficult to know where to start looking. Most professional financial planners turn to a long-term care insurance specialist for the expertise, so they can help their clients. If you have experienced long term care issues in your family, then you know the hardships a family can go through. You may want to explore ways to make sure your own immediate family can avoid this. This class explores the different ways this coverage can be purchased, how they work, and what the pitfalls are that you should be aware of. Whether it is an old fashioned traditional plan, or a hybrid plan that guarantees the money is returned back, one way or another, and other variations of that, you will have an opportunity to learn about this without sales pressure.

Instructor - Mark Baron is a long term care planning specialist, and supports hundreds of financial professionals, who depend on his expertise to guide them in making recommendations to their clients. He has been on several local radio shows and has been in demand to run seminars throughout the region. Mark lives in Canton, and is licensed in several states across the country.

The A, B, C’s & D of Medicare Planning

The planning for proper healthcare in retirement is becoming more and more complex. Understanding what plans will provide the best coverage is only part of the challenge. It is estimated the cost of healthcare, excluding long term care, for a couple during retirement will be approximately $250,000. It is critical that part of retirement planning is to understand the Medicare options you have available to you to access quality healthcare. Equally important is to understand the financial ramifications of the decisions you will be asked to make. This class will review how to approach both the selection and considerations of choosing the appropriate coverage and how to best plan financially for the associated costs.
